The COVID-19 pandemic has illuminated health disparities in Wisconsin and across the world, a lesson amplified by the death of George Floyd and the ensuing protests against institutional racism. The University of Wisconsin-Madison Global Health Institute (GHI) invites you to join us for this webinar series that brings together diverse experts from across the health spectrum, including local to global researchers, care providers and policy makers, who will explore lessons learned from the pandemic and how we move toward a more equitable and sustainable future for all. The webinars also will lay the groundwork for a series of policy briefs to further conversation on these issues of critical importance.

All seminars are from 9:00-10:00 a.m. Central Daylight Time

JULY 23: Improving Health Outcomes in Wisconsin, moderated by Sheri Johnson, Ph.D., Director, UW-Madison Population Health Institute, with panelists from Wisconsin communities. Register to join us here.

JULY 30: Institutions Respond: Ensuring Equitable Care, moderated by Ambassador John E. Lange, J.D., M.S., United Nations Foundation, with panelists from WHO, the World Bank and UW-Madison. Register to join us here.

AUGUST 20: Lessons from Abroad: From Ebola to COVID, moderated by Janis P. Tupesis, M.D., GHI Associate Director, with panelists including partners from Liberia and emergency medicine. Register to join us here.

AUGUST 27: Moving Forward: Building a More Equitable World.

For more information about the webinars and speakers, visit ghi.wisc.edu.