

COVID & EQUITY: What We've Learned; Where We Go From Here

LESSONS FROM ABROAD: FROM EBOLA TO COVID

Moderator: Janis Tupesis, M.D., Associate Director, UW-Madison Global Health Institute; Faculty, Department of Emergency Medicine

Panelists:

- Mohammed Dunbar, a former Mandela Washington Fellow and Research Officer, Ministry of Health, Liberia
- Heounohu Romello Hessou, M.D., Clinical Coordinator, National COVID-19 Isolation and Treatment Center, Margibi County, Liberia
- Michelle Niescierenko, M.D., Global Health Program Director and Assistant Professor, Pediatrics & Emergency Medicine, Harvard Medical School

Panelists will explore how countries in low- and middle-income countries have responded to the pandemic. They will look at how other countries can learn from the Liberian experience combating both Ebola and COVID-19. The session will focus on pandemic response, health systems development and health equity.

This is the third in a series of webinars bringing together diverse health experts to explore lessons learned from the pandemic and how we move toward a more equitable and sustainable future for all. Join us also on August 27 for Moving Forward: Building a More Equitable World.
